COUNTER-JUMP

China's plot to knock Earth out of orbit

Millions of loyal Americans across this great country have foiled a stupid Chinese communist plot to knock the Earth out of orbit — a sneaky trick that would have destroyed mankind!

The patriotic Americans quickly organized counter-stomps after Weekly World News reported that 1.3 billion Chinese planned to jump up and down on April 27 at 6:35 p.m. EDT and send the Earth sailing off into space.

The idea was clearly suicidal. When the Earth was jolted away from the sun, the Chinese would have frozen to death just like the rest of us. But with communism biting the dust around the world, China's leaders apparently just don't care.

"When we read about the crazy Chinese plan, we immediately realized that our generation, as future inheritors of this planet, had a duty to prevent the calamity," wrote Princeton University students Eric Peng and Jacob Weinstein, who organized P.U.S.H. — Princeton United to Save Humanity.

Hundreds of brave Princeton students counter-stomped in near freezing weather — as did the guys and gals at the Oaklyn Manor Bar in nearby Oaklyn, N.J.

Massachusetts was well represented by firemen in Pittsfield and students at Clark University in Worcester, who kicked Commie butt with counter-stomps of their own.

Radio stations in Milwaukee, Wis., Rockford, Ill., and Jacksonville, Fla., recruited thousands of additional counter-jumpers, all helping to save the Earth from total destruction.

Reliable sources reveal, too, that millions of revolutionary students in communist China risked their lives to thwart their leaders.

"They stood on stepladders and pushed against the ceiling to counter the stomp," the source said. Chinese affairs expert Dr. Henk de Vries, who alerted America to the evil Chinese plan, proclaimed our counter-jump a huge success. In an emotional interview with the NEWS, Dr. de Vries said: "We showed those commie jerks what we're made of. God bless America."

Michael Heldsteffer, whose grandfather died in the attack on Pearl Harbor, is marrying Japanese student Yoko Mitoyuri — granddaughter of a man killed when the United States bombed Nagasaki!

Incredibly, the loving couple met last year when 28-year-old Mike, traveling in Japan, visited the memorial to those killed when the United States dropped an A-bomb on Nagasaki on August 9, 1945.

MUSHROOM cloud rises above a decimated Nagasaki, Japan, after an American B-29 dropped an atomic bomb on the city August 9, 1945. Mikado Mitoyuri, inset, died in the attack.

He spotted lovely Yoko, 25, kneeling in tearful prayer near the memorial. "I took one look at her and I saw her sorrow and I realized that my country had changed the course of her life in a terrible way," said Mike, a computer programmer from Atlanta.

"I felt responsible. I went to her and tried to comfort her.

"When she told me her grandfather Mikado Mitoyuri had died in the A-bomb explosion, I said, 'Then we have something in common. My grandfather John died in World War II, too.' "

The pair spent the afternoon together, then met again and again over the next three weeks. By the time Mike's stay in Japan was over, they had fallen deeply in love.

Last year Yoko came to the United States to attend graduate school in Virginia and to be closer to her [illegible] to Virginia. And over the next year, the romance went so well that in January, Mike popped the question.

Now the unlikely pair are [illegible] enemies," says Yoko, who studies mathematics. "All that bad feeling is in the past — before we were born.

"In fact, we think of our [illegible] and anger can one day give way to feelings of love."

Mike and Yoko say their families are ecstatic over their decision to marry. Even their [illegible] wife. "Our marriage will be proof that the horrors that devastated our families during World War II are over," Mike says. "Death and trag-

Teen commits suicide on murdered dad's grave!

Family tragedy

GRIEVING Justice Myrick killed himself at his father's grave site.

Anguished teen Justice Myrick sat alone in a cemetery, gazing at the grave of his murdered father — then pressed the muzzle of a rifle to his chest and sent a bullet ripping through his heart!

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

The 17-year-old boy's lifeless body was found early on a Sunday morning, lying on a roadway in the Pilgrim's Rest Cemetery. The death gun — his own .30-06 rifle — was lying nearby.

Less than a year earlier, the dead boy's dad, 40-year-old dairyman Gary Myrick, was accidentally gunned down on his farm in Southside, Ala., in what may have been the tragic climax to a feud between Justice and other local teenagers.

"This was a terrible tragedy . . . first the father, then the son," lamented Police Chief Ed Price.

"He showed no sign, gave no warning that he was thinking of taking his own life. He was even joking with his friends a few hours before he did it.

"He loved his father very much. I think he just couldn't cope with the fact that he was dead."

The events that ultimately led to Justice's suicide began on Aug. 10, 1992, only minutes after the boy and his dad had returned home from a cattle sale.

A car drove up and its occupants — said to be three teenagers — began shooting wildly. In seconds, the father and three cows were dead.

Cops believe the teenage culprits had not intended to kill Myrick, that the shooting spree was meant to scare his son, with whom the shooters had a dispute.

Three youths — all unidentified juveniles — are charged with capital murder in the father's death. The son's death is listed as suicide.

"Because of the father's death, no stone was unturned in our investigation to learn if the boy's death was anything but suicide," Chief Price said. "I can assure you, every base was covered.

"His death was a suicide. It's just a shame that we adults couldn't have done something to prevent it."

Students pay for homeless couple's wedding!

An expectant couple living in a trash bin went out for a hot meal and wound up getting married because do-gooders offered to foot the bill!

Down-and-out Carnell Cobb, 39, said socializing wasn't on his mind when he and companion Penny Rush accepted Franklin University students' offer.

"I just wanted a hot meal," said Cobb. "I don't remember how the talk got around to marriage.

"One girl said she would put up the $35 for a marriage license and pretty soon other people were volunteering money or services."

The students, on a field assignment, were supposed to get out of their classroom in Columbus, Ohio, and meet the people.

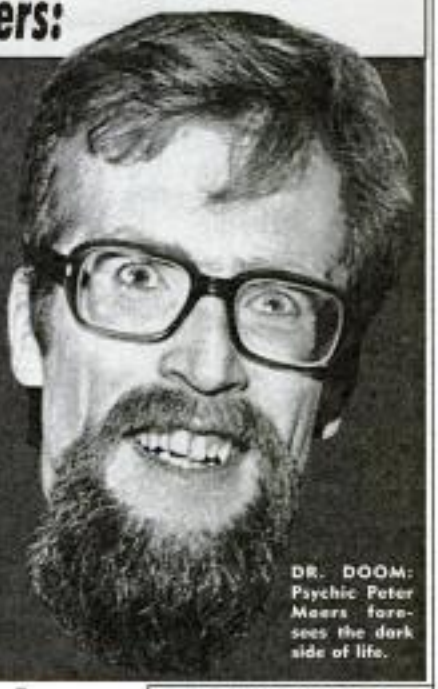
WORLD'S CRUELEST PSYCHIC!



DR. DOOM: Psychic Peter Meers foresees the dark side of life.

By BILL CARNES / Special correspondent

Talk show king Phil Donahue has a sex change. Elvis Presley electrocutes himself with a hair dryer. And President Bill Clinton sets fire to the White House while sneaking a cigar in a bedroom closet!

Those are just a few of the mind-twisting predictions that the World's Cruelest Psychic Peter Meers sees coming to pass between now and the end of 1994.

Here's more from the famed New Orleans seer:

● Ol' Blue Eyes himself, Frank Sinatra, infuriates Middle America but wins favor with feminists by recording a bizarre variation of his smash hit, My Way, entitled HER Way!

● Jackie Onassis has a lot of explaining to do when photographers catch her pouring water on the eternal flame that burns on ex-husband John F. Kennedy's grave!

● Not to be outdone by Jackie O, Sen. Ted Kennedy disgraces himself and the entire Kennedy clan by snorkeling drunk and nude — in full view of a TV camera crew — at Chappaquiddick!

● Elvis Presley, 58, makes international headlines for the last time when he accidentally drops a hair dryer in the tub he is bathing in, instantly electrocuting himself!

● First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton flabbergasts America and the world when she officially drops the surname Clinton — and makes hubby Bill do the same!

● Phil Donahue stuns wife Marlo Thomas and adoring fans everywhere when he reveals that he secretly underwent a sex-change operation two years ago — in 1991!

● Madonna faces a staggering $50 million lawsuit when she accidentally bumps — and blinds — an adoring fan with the point of her left bra cup!

● President Clinton is forced to answer hard and embarrassing questions after he

● Home Improvement star Tim Allen vanishes from the face of the earth when his home is swallowed by a sinkhole!

"People think I'm cruel because I foresee the dark side of life but I have no power to shape things that are yet to be," said Meers, who was dubbed the World's Cruelest Psychic after he laughingly predicted the murder of Beatle John Lennon and the AIDS-death of actor Rock Hudson.

UNHAPPY HOOKER!

Teen orders dirty movie — and gets call girl instead!

A 14-year-old boy ordered a dirty movie from a video delivery service — and got a scantily clad hooker instead!

By SUSAN JIMISON
Staff writer

The unidentified Ridgefield Park, N.J., boy was stunned when he opened his door and found Penny Melendez, 22, standing there in below-freezing weather in a red miniskirt and halter top, cops say.

The woman demanded $250, police say, but the terrified kid — who was home alone — searched the house from top to bottom and could find only $27.

Incredibly, Miss Melendez then grabbed the family stereo along with the money and took off, officers reported.

The boy called police, who found the woman walking nearby with the stereo under her arm.

She was charged with drug violations after lawmen allegedly found heroin, a hypodermic needle and other drug paraphernalia in her possession. Her bail was set at $5,000.

"The boy had responded to a magazine ad and thought he was going to get an adult video," Ridgefield Park Police Det. John DiNiro told Weekly World News. "He was very surprised by what happened."

Officers said the phone number in the ad apparently put the boy in touch with a call girl service rather than a video delivery firm.

When Miss Melendez took his money and stereo, the boy risked getting into trouble with his parents to call police and report the crime.

"If there is some publicity around this, maybe some good will

Most women want cavemen for hubbies!

Kind, sensitive guys are OUT, says survey

By SALLY CARRUBA
Special correspondent

American gals have had it with sensitive, wimpy men — and are dying to find themselves a good, old-fashioned, macho caveman!

That's the shocking conclusion of a new study revealing that gals are sick of spineless guys who walk around on tiptoes trying to please the lady in their life.

"They're saying, 'Forget sensitive men — give us bullies,'" says California researcher Dr. Hiram Croft.

"They're desperate for old-fashioned feelings like the sense of being protected, of being cared for by someone who can understand and deal with the difficult and frightening aspects of life. But more than this, women now want a dictator.

Dr. Croft

"They don't want to have to make decisions. They don't want to have to think for themselves anymore. They want to be free to love and feel, just like they were in the days before Women's Lib."

Dr. Croft's astonishing findings are based on extensive interviews with 2,456 women across the country. The researcher said he expected to find that the ladies he surveyed — ranging in age from 25 to 45 — would show an increasing interest in "sensitive" men who scored high in traits like willingness to compromise, empathy, compassion, nurturing, and generosity.

But to his surprise, he found the women showing a renewed interest in the old-fashioned macho male who scored high in traits like aggressiveness, firmness, decisiveness and self-confidence.

"It's clear that today's woman wants her man to be the leader," Dr. Croft said.

"The gentle, sharing man of true regardless of the subject's educational or social background.

"We are planning a follow-up study to find out why women are asking for a stronger male.

"Until then, I can only offer a theory.

"I believe that the economic hard times and a new sexual conservatism has made women more anxious to find permanent stability with a dominant, strong male.

"These women are less interested in finding a companion.

"They're looking for a lord

RICHARD PRYOR SHOCKER!

Painted ladies are keeping me alive!

TRAGIC funnyman Richard Pryor on the lookout for love and wife No. 7.

Ailing comic Richard Pryor is so desperately lonely he has to pay hookers to keep him company! "Yes, damn it, I'm lonely!" cries Pryor.

"And now that the money is running low, so are the friends. As a matter of fact, the only ladies who visit me are, ya know, the kind I gotta pay.

"And I'm sure they leave happy, because I've been accused of treating whores better than I treat my family, friends and employees."

But Pryor, whose nerves are ravaged by MS and whose heart is a quadruple bypass zone, looks forward to ending his lonely guy condition by getting hitched for the 7th time. "I think about getting married again, having a home and a wife," he says. "No one can ever be married too many times, and maybe if I keep trying I'll get it right one day. But it's kind of difficult to meet someone when you're always layin' around in bed — not many pretty girls walk through the door and say, 'Hey, anyone in there who's lonely?' "

Knight Rider David Hasselhoff has a global hit in Baywatch, the steamy series about the adventures of lifeguards at Malibu Beach. The show's first season was no day at the beach, though.

"It was quite an awakening," recalls David. "After Knight Rider, I was pretty much cast as the guy who talked to cars, and I didn't want Baywatch to be Knight Rider on the water or Murder at Malibu. So I said,"This is a great beach, and you want to shoot some pretty girls, but don't do just another cop show."

We don't know if David had pretty Shawn Weatherly in mind, but she sure is easy on the eyes.

New study: IQ tests do NOT measure how smart you are!

Contrary to popular belief, IQ tests don't really measure intelligence at all!

That's the shocking conclusion of Cornell University researchers, who say IQ tests measure only how well you can be expected to perform in school.

"But school achievement is only one of probably hundreds of kinds of intelligence," said expert Stephen Ceci.

"Before you rush to a judgment about somebody's intelligence on the basis of IQ test scores, you have to know a lot more about that person.

"What we are finding is that intelligence comes down to how successful you are in meeting the important everyday challenges in your life."

Ceci and fellow researcher Jeffery Liker made a three-year study of 30 racetrack handicappers, with a wide range of IQs and educational backgrounds.

"We found a crane operator with an IQ of 80 and a chemist with an IQ of 135," he said.

"We had a span of educational backgrounds — from a third-grade education up to a doctorate."

The 30 handicappers were asked to predict the winners of hypothetical horse races in which the winners had already been predetermined by a computer.

To help them make their selections, the handicappers were given a complex computer-prepared "form sheet" listing many variables, such as the horses' speed for each quarter-mile in past races and their bad habits when trying to pass other horses.

Fourteen of the 30 men were considerably better at handicapping the races than the other 16 men, Ceci said. Yet the two groups of handicappers had the same average IQ.

Other studies, Ceci added, point to the same conclusion: An IQ score is not a good predictor of a person's intelligence.

DATE OR BAIT?

WIVES PAY THIS GAL TO SEDUCE THEIR HUSBANDS!

"Coming on" to men in bars is all in a day's work for sexy Joanne Hunter, who's paid big bucks to do just that — by wives who want to find out if their hubbies are cheating on them!

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

Armed with a hidden mike and a tiny tape recorder, the leggy private eye turns on the charm for unsuspecting fellows in bars and restaurants.

"I want to find out if the husband will lie about being married or having kids when a young blonde hits on him," the shapely lady says.

"And so far I haven't had one husband who said, 'No thank you. I'm married.' Not one."

That's a sad commentary on modern-day marriage, considering that Joanne has conducted more than 40 of these investigations, mostly for middle-age women who suspect their mates are fooling around — or looking to fool around — with other women.

The wives are afraid their cheating hubbies will bring AIDS or other sexually transmitted diseases back to their bedroom, so they willingly pay hubby-busting Joanne $150 to check up on their mates.

"The husbands don't have a clue that I'm setting them up when I start coming on to them," says Joanne, 33.

She makes eye contact and smiles at the guy. She might even buy him a drink.

After a few minutes of small talk, she'll start with the key questions: Are you married? Do you have kids? Would you like to see me again?

Answers to those questions are tape-recorded and handed over to the poor fellow's wife. Sometimes the taped conversation leads to separation or divorce, Joanne says.

The svelte lady got the idea for her business — called Stale Mates — from a woman friend whose lover turned out to be married.

She advertised with handbills and newspaper ads in and around Kitchener, Ont., Canada — and in a flash, business was booming.

Joanne doesn't follow up her "come on" by actually dating the cheating hubby — unless the wife anne's boyfriend will videotape a date and turn the tape over to the cheating hubby's wife.

Joanne insists there is nothing underhanded about her methods — and she doesn't feel sorry for the men who fall for her charms.

"Jealousy and temptation will be around until the end of time," she says. "Everybody can be tempted. Everybody flirts, but only a few are unfaithful."

THE BAIT: Joanne Hunter charges $150 to check on cheating hubbies.

TV shopping shows give me a pain in the wallet!

I'm madder than Donald Trump with a busted American Express card over these home shopping shows on TV!

My wife Thelma Jean and my fat-fanny daughter-in-law Candy are going to send me to the poorhouse if they don't stop ordering stuff from these boob-tube hucksters.

Hell, if they put the Queen Elizabeth II ocean liner up for sale on one of these shows, Thelma Jean and Candy would order it, sure as shootin'.

And guess who gets stuck with the bill? Yep, yours truly.

MY AMERICA
By ED ANGER

Now I'm not saying they don't have some good stuff for sale on these programs. I just bought some baseball cards and fishing equipment from 'em.

And the day before that I ordered some power tools and some of that miracle car wax and one of those stereo sets that lets you sing along with the greats like Frank Sinatra, Tom Jones, and Tony Bennett.

I even ordered one of those space-age vacuum cleaners for Thelma Jean's birthday and I gave Candy one of their super-duper food processors for Christmas.

But you gotta use a little self-control — something most women don't know a thing about.

That's why I'm putting my foot down and forbidding my wife and daughter-in-law to turn on these home shopping shows from now on out.

If they want something, I'll order it for 'em while I'm checking out the real bargains they offer.

Let's face it. Men can watch these shopping shows without falling for every pitch that comes along.

But women will buy absolutely ANYTHING!

These home shopping shows are like booze to an alcoholic for the gals. They just can't resist. They oughta have a government warning on the screen saying these shows can be hazardous to women and girls and they should WATCH WITH EXTREME CAUTION!

And not only that, these home shopping shows make women fat, for Pete's sake!

Instead of working off the flab fighting the crowds at real live department stores, they just flop down in front of the tube and shop till their heart's content.

My dear mother, God rest her soul, used to walk blisters on her feet doing the shopping and once collapsed at Kmart after sprinting 17 aisles to save money on a Blue Light Special. That was REAL shopping, folks — not using a credit card and a telephone to keep the family in supplies!

LET'S go back to the old days — when shopping meant going to the store, says Ed.

Gal sues upstairs neighbor for playing the piano ALL DAY!

Fed-up law student Debra Fogarty took her noisy upstairs neighbor to court — for pounding on the piano while she tried to study.

"I beat on the ceiling to get her to stop, but that didn't work. I tried earplugs, but that didn't work," Debra recalled.

"I talked to her, and when that didn't work, I complained to the landlord. Nothing worked."

Finally, Debra took Valerie Traficante to court — and that didn't work, either.

Valerie, a concert pianist rehearsing for a recording with the Royal Philharmonic, convinced Gainesville, Fla., Judge Stan Morris that her banging on the baby grand was not a nuisance.

"I basically approach this like a job. I play from 9 to 5," said Valerie, 40. "I've never run into anything like her apartment with heavy comforters. She closed the piano lid and placed blankets and pillows on top of it.

But Debra continued to pound on her door or the ceiling below her floor when she practiced, Valerie said.

"It's so vicious. Vicious is the only word I can use to describe it," Valerie added.

Debra complained to the judge that over and over again, seven days a week," Debra said. She suggested the court force Valerie to lay off the music for four or five days so she could concentrate on her studies.

But the judge said he was unwilling to "split the baby in half." He ruled the piano practice didn't constitute a nuisance or noise pollution.

Secret negotiations avert planned attack from outer space

Aliens call off invasion of Earth!

By ALEX MORGAN
Special correspondent

Warriors from another world had planned to attack Earth this July, but the doomsday invasion has apparently been averted — thanks to President Clinton's secret negotiations with the aliens!

"From all indications, the invasion is off," said a high-ranking administration official.

"The talks are continuing, but for now we believe the danger is over."

Weekly World News first reported that an invasion was planned after scientists intercepted and translated a radio transmission from space in 1987.

Intergalactic warriors were set to assault planet in July

The brief message was decoded by an international team of scientists led by Dr. Gerhard Schultz, who said the transmission was intended for alien scouts already involved in pre-strike activities on Earth.

"Make no mistake about it — aliens from a distant planet have served mankind with a declaration of war," Dr. Schultz said in 1987. "They are already on their way."

Dr. Schultz said the message indicated that the aliens would invade Earth on July 6, 1993. Other scientists interpreted the message to say the intruders would be here as early as this spring.

U.S. officials have worked feverishly to find a way to avert the attack — going so far as to open negotiations with an envoy from the distant planet.

The NEWS reported in 1991 that former President George Bush had met several times with an alien from an unknown world. Sources subsequently revealed that the peace-loving alien was serving as a go-between for Bush and the invaders.

The same alien later helped Clinton negotiate with the attackers — and even took the newly elected President on a top-secret ride in a spaceship to meet their leader.

"Without the efforts of the friendly alien, we would be bracing for a devastating attack," said a White House aide.

But Earth's good fortune may doom another planet in a remote area of the Milky Way.

"These alien warriors are no saints," the aide said. "They have been traveling for many years to get here and they aren't about to just turn around and go home without attacking somebody.

"Unfortunately, another poor planet in another solar system is likely to suffer the wrath of these in-

DOOMSDAY invasion plans were first reported in the January 20, 1987, Weekly World News. At that time, alien scouts were already involved in pre-strike activities on Earth, say scientists.

BAT WITH HUMAN FACE CAPTURED IN VERMONT!

TINY bat with human face was captured in the Green Mountain National Forest in central Vermont.

They're breeding like flies, says scientist!

By MIKE BRINKLEY
Special correspondent

RUTLAND, Vermont — Scientists who captured a bat with a human face say the creature might be one of millions breeding like flies in the American wilderness!

Even more compelling, the creature is smart — suggesting that it might be more closely related to human beings than the ordinary brown bats it was found with.

"This little animal is small enough to fit in a teacup but what we have to learn from it will change the way we look at human beings, evolution and even life itself," zoologist Richard Clement told reporters.

"The bat not only has a human face, it has fleshy, muscular arms and legs, a sur-and the apparent ability to mimic basic human speech.

"We have yet to find another bat that looks even remotely like it," continued the expert, "but I'm sure we will — soon.

"Mother Nature isn't in the habit of making mistakes.

"When life-forms evolve from one species to another, they generally have the physical and mental attributes they need to survive, attributes that include the ability to reproduce more of their own kind.

Dr. Clement

"Indications are that there

faces, millions of them, living and breeding in forests and caves all over America.

"I truly believe that we have found a new species that, unknown to us, has existed in the wild for years."

Dr. Clement and four colleagues discovered the strange creature while capturing and tagging brown bats at an undisclosed site near Granville on the eastern edge of the Green Mountain National Forest.

The expert and his team instantly realized that the bat was unusual.

But nothing could have prepared them for what they would find after they took the bat back to their lab for fur-only had a human face and appendages — its brain was found to be twice the size of those found in ordinary bats!

To top it off, Dr. Clement said the bat turned out to be "exceedingly docile and comfortable around humans, almost as if it feels drawn to us by some unseen genetic bond.

"The bat seems to fall somewhere between a chimp and a dog on the scale of intelligence and from all indications, it is trying to talk," continued the expert.

"On several occasions it has attempted to mimic my use of simple words like yes, no, food, and water. Whether something we'll have to find out by closely observing its behavior.

"For the time being our main challenge is to find other bats like it. When we return to the area later this spring we hope to discover a colony of them."

While Dr. Clement prepares to search for other bats with human features, researchers from all over the world are seeking access to the bat now in captivity.

The expert hinted that it might be months before he will allow the creature to be examined by sources outside

BEWARE!

TOO MUCH MEAT CAN KILL YOUR DOG!

TOP VETS warn that high-protein diets may cause your dog to develop kidney disease.

Feeding your dog food rich in protein is not only a waste of money — but you could be killing him, experts warn.

"If the dog is an inactive, house-type dog, and especially if he's over 6 years old, then feeding a high-protein diet is poisoning the animal," said veterinarian Dr. Greg Harrison.

"People don't know this. They're protein-conscious due to advertising, and think they're doing a good thing — but most high-protein diets are more protein than the average house dog needs.

"The protein ends up running out the kidneys in the form of urea, which is actually a poison the body has to get rid of," he said.

"If the kidneys aren't in perfect working order, it can't filter this out — and in most dogs over 6 the kidneys lose up to 40 percent of its function."

Dr. Harrison said he personally knows of cases in which dogs have been killed by a high-protein diet.

"Younger dogs, not just older dogs, have this problem of absorbing protein," he said.

Dr. David Hutcheson, an animal nutrition expert, agrees.

"When you feed a high-protein diet, particularly to an older dog, you might get a condition called nephritis, a kidney disease," said Dr. Hutcheson.

"The best diet you can feed your dog is a mixture of meat protein and cereal grain. People who feed their dogs only hamburger aren't doing a good thing. It's not enough.

"Generally speaking, the cheaper brands of dog food (which contain cereal) are just as good for your dog as the more expensive."

Dr. Mark Morris Jr., a veterinarian and animal nutritionist, said the American public has been misled into believing if you don't feed your dog meat, you don't love him.

"The idea that high-protein or high-meat diets are beneficial to dogs just doesn't happen to be true," he said.

"People think they're doing the best thing for their dog when they buy the most expensive products on the market, but they're really not."

My snoopin' stepdad squashed my sex life!

Confidential

Dear Stinky in Richmond: Don't give me any of that "chemical imbalance" crap. If you really want skin that's fresh and clean, bathe!

Dear Honeybuns in Baton Rouge: I'll take my honey on toast, thank you.

Dear Classy in New Brockton: I don't care how much lace you stitch on your dresses — you're still a man!

Dear Confused in Penrose: Now why do you think your wife glued a picture of Mel Gibson on the ceiling over your bed?

Dear Guilty in Hanover: If the hostess didn't provide you with ample toilet paper you had every right to use her towels instead.

Dear Watchdog in Syracuse: Say what you like. As far as I'm concerned that's a SICK way to get your kicks!

Dear Wondering in Winsted: Mom is right. Your boyfriend's an idiot!

Dear Dotti: My stepfather won't let me have a boyfriend. I'm 17 years old and whenever I leave the house he goes through my desk, diary and anything else he can find to see what I'm up to with the opposite sex.

This isn't fair, Dotti. How can I make him leave my things alone and let me date like normal kids? — Deprived in Florence

Dear Deprived: Make a list of all the reasons you deserve a boyfriend and present it to your stepdad. Tell him why you're responsible enough to have a steady. You can also let him know that I'm in your corner as long as you make good grades, obey curfews and know enough about sex to stay out of trouble. If you do what I say he'll see the errors of his ways — I personally guarantee it!

Has a knockout like you ever considered modeling?

Dear Dotti: I've read your column for years now and happen to think that you're one of the most beautiful women on the planet. Have you ever thought about modeling? I think you'd be terrific! — Admirer in Houston

Dear Admirer: I've graced the covers of 21 magazines over the course of my career but that's pretty much behind me now. When you reach the age of 30, like I will this summer, it's time to step aside and make way for a younger crowd!

Big brothers treat me like a 20-year-old baby!

Dear Dotti: I have five brothers who are older than me and they all tell me what to do. They tell me to clean the house. They tell me to mind my mom and dad. They even tell me what time to go to bed at night. And it's not like I'm a baby, either, Dotti — I'm 20 years old. How can I make them leave me alone? — Tortured in Reidsville

Dear Tortured: If you're still living at home at the age of 20 you aren't mature enough to run your own life. Grow up. Get a job. Get your own apartment and write back. Then we'll talk!

My selfish mom wants me to lay off her liquor stash!

Dear Dotti: My mom is all bent out of shape because I help myself to her liquor stash while she's at work. I'm 21 and can drink legally. But she says I have no right to swig her booze because I don't work and liquor is expensive. I say what's hers is mine. Don't you agree? — Angry in Key West

Dear Angry: I agree with you 100 percent. I also think your mother should take a hint — and boot you out of her house for good!

How can a little boy make a big impression on a girl?

Dear Dotti: I'm in the fifth grade and there's this girl I really like. I want to give her a gift she'll never forget. What should it be? — Wondering in Nashville

Dear Wondering: Most gals would remember a slap in the face but I definitely don't advise you to gift her with that. Splurge on some nice carnations or roses, kiddo. When it comes to impressing a woman, flowers ALWAYS do it best!

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell it like it is. Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

Ask Serena

Can you cast a spell to make me skinny?

Dear Serena: I'm 75 pounds overweight and can't trim down no matter what I do.

I've tried every diet there is and I exercise like crazy — but nothing seems to help. You're the only person in the world who can help me, Serena. Please cast a spell to make me thin. — Obese in Taylorsville

Dear Obese: I'll gladly cast a spell to curb your appetite for ice cream and chocolates but that's as far as I'm willing to go. If you want to lose weight and stay thin you'll have to find the willpower to eat more sensibly. On a high note, my crystal ball tells me you'll lose the 75 pounds in 11 short months — and look smashing in a bikini this time next year!

Dear Scared: This will come as a shock, but you're the victim of an elaborate practical joke. Discuss the situation with your next-door neighbor. And from now on, sleep with your doors locked!

Gal has shoulder pads im — PERMANENTLY!

LOOKIN' GOOD! Gloria Leversmith shows off her glamorous new implants.

Fashion fanatic Gloria Leversmith solved her problem with shoulder pads that slip out of place — by having a plastic surgeon implant permanent pads in her shoulders!

The special new implants keep her looking fashionable even when she's only wearing lingerie. And they don't slip out of place like pads attached to jackets, blouses and dresses, she says.

"Of course, I can't go to the beach because my body looks a little strange — but then I never go to the beach anyway because sunshine is so bad for your skin," says Gloria, 39.

"And other than that, it's just a perfect solution to the problem of runaway shoulder pads.

"Now anytime I wear a nice suit or dress, I feel secure knowing that nothing is going to spoil my perfect appearance."

The wealthy Miami divorcee says she loves the big-shouldered look and adopted it the minute it became fashionable in 1989.

But she soon realized that although the new look made her waist appear tiny and accentuated her height, it was a pain in the neck to wear.

The shoulder pads sometimes slipped over her arms, giving her a bulging-muscle look.

Other times they slipped backward or forward, making her look like she had a hunchback or too many breasts.

Sick of struggling with the foam and fabric inserts, she arranged to have her bizarre surgery done in 1990. The operation — which cost $3,400 — involved sucking fat from her thighs and abdomen and transplanting it to the tops of

HOW TO AVOID BEING BORED TO DEATH!

You can lead a more exciting and productive life — by simply learning to fight off boredom!

"To an extent, you can die of boredom," says psychiatrist Dr. Edward C. Norman.

"A person needs stimulation just as a muscle in the body does to remain healthy."

Here are his tips to combat boredom:

● Be prepared. When you don't have time to read a newspaper thoroughly, clip out articles or crossword puzzles. They'll come in handy when you get bored.

● Accept challenges. Do things you wouldn't ordinarily do. Say hello to a neighbor you might normally ignore. Phone an old friend.

● Change the scene. If you live

● Change your habits. Get up an hour earlier than usual. Don't always watch the same TV shows or listen to the same radio station. Try a new hairstyle.

● Take advantage of "calamities." Read a book if your TV goes on the blink. If your car breaks down, walk to as many places as possible until it's fixed — cover

LIFESAVER Cheryl Dumas and her dad Russ.

Little girl saves her dad's life 14 TIMES!

'She's my guardian angel!'

Super-smart schoolgirl Cheryl Dumas is a skinny 8-year-old who has saved her dad's life not once, not twice — but an amazing 14 times!

By RICK TRACY
Correspondent

"I know it sounds hard to believe, but I would have been dead many times over if it weren't for my little girl," said Cheryl's diabetic father Russ, 36.

"Thank God she's here to take care of me. She is truly my guardian angel."

Cheryl's incredible heroics began shortly after she turned 5. Her devoted dad tells what happened:

"I was lying under my car changing the brake pads when the jack slipped and the car came crashing down on my chest. I tried to scream for help, but I could barely breathe, let alone scream.

"Cheryl was playing in the yard and saw that I was in trouble. She ran into the house and called the fire department. They got there just in time."

Russ, whose wife died of complications when Cheryl was born, was rushed to a hospital with chest injuries.

"If Cheryl had panicked, I wouldn't be talking to you today," the grateful salesman told a reporter. "I was unconscious when they pulled me out from under the car."

Since that near-fatal day, the gutsy little girl has:

- Saved her dad from drowning by pulling him to shore when their boat tipped over in a small lake near their home in Oshkosh, Wis.
- Used the Heimlich maneuver to save her father's life when he choked on a piece of steak.
- Pushed him out of the path of a speeding truck.
- Used baking soda to smother a raging grease fire that broke out in their kitchen while her father was in the bathroom.
- Saved her father on nine separate occasions when he suffered diabetic seizures.

"My dad is a disaster waiting to happen," said the blonde wonder girl.

"He definitely needs someone to take care of him. Sometimes I wonder who is the adult and who is the child in this family."

And Cheryl's adoring dad admits his little girl is 8 years old going on 25.

"She's had to grow up fast and it's been tough without a mother to guide her," Russ said. "I don't take care of myself like I should, but I've never had to — because she's always been there to take care of me.

"She's saved my life 14 times. I don't know what I'd do without her."

What to do when a cop pulls you over

What should you do when a policeman in a car signals you to pull over? Los Angeles County Sheriff Peter Pitchess says:

- Remain calm and carefully pull off to the right side of the highway when traffic permits.
- Avoid stopping in obscure and darkened areas and do not pull into a driveway.
- Stay in your car with your hands in normal position on the steering wheel.

until the officer asks for them.

- If standing outside your car, avoid concealing your hands in your pockets — even the smallest crevice can conceal a weapon.
- If there are passengers in your car encourage them to cooperate with the officer.
- If you are unsure of why

Bullies stuff nerd in locker & leave him to die!

A nerdy teenager was constantly bullied by classmates for being too brainy till one day they stuffed him into his gym locker — and left him there to die!

Yuhei Kodama, 13, is the latest victim of "ijime," a brutal form of torture inflicted by Japanese students on egghead classmates who don't fit in.

"The situation is becoming more and more outrageous — and more and more terrifying," said a top education official in Tokyo.

"These are some of Japan's brightest students — top of the class and, it appears, top of the hit list, too.

"Their classmates don't like them because they are too smart.

"They make the others look bad — so the others beat them up or kill them."

The day Yuhei died, hundreds of classmates jeered at the frightened eighth-grader as a gang of bullies shoved, kicked and pummeled him around a crowded school gym in Shinjo, a small farming town in northern Japan.

The young thugs then hauled the boy to his gym locker, stuffed him inside, locked the door and left him there to suffocate.

A horrified teacher found Yuhei's lifeless body later that day.

Within the week, seven classmates were arrested for the whiz kid's death.

And Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa, in a speech to Parliament, declared the murder "the tip of the iceberg — another disturbing sign of the pressure-cooker environment in Japanese schools that leads students to take out their anxieties on their classmates."

Japan's Health and Welfare Ministry says it will hire 14,000 adult advisers to act as "guardian angels" for other misfit kids.

"Someone has got to come to the rescue of our best and brightest students before there are none left," said an official.

CHINESE DIG HOLE THROUGH EARTH AND COME OUT IN ARIZONA DESERT!

Refugees are pouring through and must be stopped, says CIA official

By TONY CASSIDY
Correspondent

Thousands of impoverished men, women and children are scurrying like rats to a new life in America — through a 12,000-mile tunnel they dug from China to Arizona!

The incredible shaft took more than 200 years to dig and claimed the lives of more than a million Chinese slave laborers who were cremated where they fell.

Chinese officials at first flatly denied the tunnel's existence.

But they finally agreed to talk because they feared American scientists were planning to take credit for the project.

"This is China's finest hour," declared Dr. Koo Ling-Tse, a professor of geology at the University of Beijing.

"The loss of life is a regrettable but acceptable price to pay for the honor and glory the achievement has brought my country," Dr Koo said.

"Our trans-Earth tunnel makes the Seven Wonders of the World seem like child's play by comparison."

Dr. Koo said the tunnel doesn't pass through the center of Earth because the heat of the outer core and the solid-iron composition of the inner core made that route virtually impossible.

"Instead, the tunnel goes straight down through the crust and into the mantle to a depth of 1,200 miles," the scientist said.

"Then it turns to the east and continues down, curving around the lava-filled outer core until it is directly under the state of Arizona.

"From there, the tunnel goes straight down... or up, depending on your point of view... until it emerges in the Arizona desert. Exactly where that point of emergence is, I am not at liberty to disclose at this time."

Dr. Koo said the tunnel was

MEDICAL SHOCKER

Pets can make you sicker than a dog!

By TERESA SPIVEY
Correspondent

Your pet can make you sick — and the diseases it gives you can be fatal!

"There are more than 150 virus infections, parasitic infections and bacterial infections that can be transmitted from animal to man," says Dr. Murray Fowler, a top veterinarian.

Here are some of the diseases that animals can give humans:

● Ringworm — "This is a fungus that grows on the skin," explained Dr. Jessie Washington.

"Spores of the fungus from dogs, cats, hamsters, guinea pigs and other animals can light on your skin, causing very infectious circular lesions.

"You can treat ringworm with various antifungual drugs."

● Cat scratch disease — "If a person is scratched or bitten by a cat with a certain virus on its paws or mouth, the lymph nodes under his arms will swell and the groin area can swell and rupture," Dr. Washington said.

"Usually the victim is bedridden for only a few days with fever."

● Toxoplasmosis — This protozoan parasite is passed on to humans via cat feces.

It is especially dangerous for pregnant women.

"The parasite can be passed from mother to fetus and produce serious effects — including death," Dr. Fowler said. "And the mother may not even show a sign of infection.

"Pregnant women should have their cats examined for toxoplasmosis."

● Creeping eruption — "If a person steps on dog or cat hookworm larva, passed to the ground by feces, the worm causes tracks in the skin that itch," said parasite expert Dr. John Schacher.

"The disease is easily curable with prescription drugs."

● Psittacosis or "parrot fever" — Pet birds can cause parrot fever.

"In most healthy people, parrot fever is like an influenza virus," said veterinarian Dr. Steve Smith. "But in older people, young children or people with less resistance, it becomes more serious."

Psittacosis is easily treated.

But despite the diseases spread by animals, experts don't advise getting rid of your pets.

"Inoculate your pet and watch it for signs of disease," Dr. Fowler said. "And make sure your children have a place to play that animals can't contaminate."

Bizarre human sacrifice in Indiana!

A chilling satanic ritual ended in the grisly murder of an unsuspecting victim, who was carved up like a Christmas turkey, burned to a crisp and buried in an Indiana cornfield.

Prosecutors say Tony Ault, 21, was lured to a farm near Auburn, Ind., by devil-worshiping coworkers and tied to a tree in 1991. Candles were lit around the helpless victim as two of his tormentors chanted.

"After blindfolding him, one of the satanists slashed his throat from ear to ear," a state police spokesman said. "There were satanic signs on his forehead and torso — written in his own blood."

Satan worshipers slit man's throat & chopped him into pieces, say cops

Ault's brutalized body was later chopped into three pieces, burned black and buried in a shallow grave. Acting on an anonymous tip, state police discovered Ault's rotting bones four months later and arrested four men who worked with him on the Indiana carnival circuit.

Charged with murder was Jimmie Lee Penick, 25, who is accused of performing the fatal ritual. He faces the death penalty if convicted. Mark Goodman, 25, has been convicted of assisting in a criminal battery and battery with a deadly weapon, but he hasn't been sentenced. David Lawrence, 23, was sentenced to eight years in prison for assisting a criminal. His brother Keith, 20, was sentenced to 30 years in prison for conspiracy to commit murder.

SENTENCED: David Lawrence, left, and his brother Keith helped bury the mutilated corpse of their innocent victim.

Cops say Penick, Goodman and Keith Lawrence helped cut up Ault's battered body. David Lawrence admitted that he helped carry and bury the body.

"I regret that I did not stop the crime," Keith Lawrence said at his sentencing. "Tony didn't deserve to die."

SHAME ON US!

Most Americans don't recognize the words to the Declaration of Independence

WHAT IS IT? Few Americans know.

Most Americans remember the punch lines of jokes and the words to their favorite songs — but only 2 percent recognize key passages from the Declaration of Independence!

And to make matters even more humiliating an amazing 89 percent of Russians recognize the passages instantly.

. . . but a mind-boggling 89 percent of Russians do!

Weekly World News recently questioned 100 men and women over 21 years of age, asking them to identify the following words from an unlabeled copy of the Declaration of Independence:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal . . ."

And shockingly, only 2 of the 100 could correctly identify that stirring passage.

Seventeen of the people thought the historic document written by Thomas Jefferson was either the U.S. Constitution or the preamble to the Constitution. Four others guessed it was the Bill of Rights.

Six others got bad marks for identifying it as either the Gettysburg Address or one of Lincoln's other writings.

"And there were a few people who didn't know what the hell we were talking about," one pollster said.

The survey was conducted at a shopping mall in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Those quizzed included retirees, tourists, housewives, students, businessmen and salesclerks.

In contrast to this is the fact that almost all Russians know every word of the famous document.

"Most of our children memorize the words when they are in high school," one Russian educator explained.

"With the steps we have taken toward democracy over here now most adults have made a special effort to study the U.S. Declaration of Independence. They are amazed Ameri-

The terrified couple from Kiangsi Province yelled from their bed for help for two hours before hotel employees heard their cries and responded.

"After my husband looked under the bed and saw that big cat he jumped back in bed and we were both afraid to get

BLUE-RIBBON CHILI IS MADE WITH COW MANURE!

By TANYA BRODER
Correspondent

Super chef Geraldo Renaldez won more than 200 chili cookoffs before his ex-wife revealed his secret recipe — and diners learned he spiced his scrumptious chili with milk of magnesia and cow poop!

The famed Mexican cook lost his high-paying job at an Acapulco restaurant after his secret surfaced this spring, but the 43-year-old father of five insists his chili is harmless as can be.

SUPER CHEF Geraldo Renaldez

"The cow manure — if it is fresh — adds a rich dark quality to the chili," Renaldez says.

"The milk of magnesia smoothes it and gives it a lovely texture. Without these ingredients, my chili would still be good. But it wouldn't be the greatest chili the world has ever tasted."

Renaldez had entered a number of chili cooking contests before he discovered his miracle ingredients in 1981, but he'd never won a single prize. It was only when he accidentally spilled his chili in the yard of his country home that he learned how to make the dish special.

"I had spent two days preparing a pot of chili and was carrying it to the car on my way to the contest when I tripped and the whole thing dumped out," the chef recalled.

"I managed to scoop up most of it, but along with the chili I got part of a fresh cow pat that was lying in the yard. I knew the manure was in there, but I didn't have time to cook up another batch. So I entered the chili anyway."

Incredibly, Renaldez' cow-poop chili was awarded an honorable mention — his first distinction. Judges said they loved the taste of the dish, but some complained about its texture.

The crafty cook returned home from the cookoff convinced that cow dung gave his chili a winning flavor and determined to create the texture he needed for the perfect chili.

After several months of experimenting with oils, cornstarch and other ingredients, he hit upon the idea of adding milk of magnesia.

"I took some one night when I was suffering from the flu and I realized that it had just the consistency I was looking for," Renaldez recalled. "I added a few tablespoons to the pot on my stove and — ta da! — the perfect chili. It was smooth as silk, it was rich and dark, it was everything a judge could want."

Renaldez' cow-poop chili soon became famous. Only when his angry wife sued him for divorce and spilled the beans did folks learn what they'd been eating all those years.

And although public reaction has been overwhelmingly negative, the cook hopes he'll someday convince everyone that eating cow poop is not so bad.

"Folks have eaten my chili for years and never gotten sick," says the chef, who has been looking for work since he was fired over the chilling chili revelation.

"There's nothing bad about it — it's delicious. And I know that before long folks will be clamoring for it again."

HISTORY'S MOST BIZARRE SECRET REVEALED! MEET . . .

ATTILA THE HONEY

History's fiercest warrior was really a WOMAN!

Attila the Hun was one of the fiercest warriors who ever lived, but the marauding Mongol was no man among men, a top historian says — she was really a beautiful, curvaceous woman!

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Correspondent

Barbaric Attila terrorized 5th century Europe with her band of bloodthirsty fighting men — who obeyed her every command because they were madly in love with her, insists Dr. Yuri Tashenko.

"The men she led were crazy about her," says Dr. Tashenko, a professor of antiquities at the University of Kiev in the Ukraine. "They adored her so much they gladly gave their lives for her.

"She was ferociously cruel on the battlefield, but when the fighting was over, she would go back to her tent, take a long, perfumed bath and select a lucky lieutenant to make love to her.

"She was known for her love skills. Her men were absolutely mesmerized by her."

Even by modern-day standards, the fearsome femme fatale would have won hearts, Dr. Tashenko says.

She was tall and slender for her time and had a great love of beautiful robes and furs.

While most of her followers rarely washed and never gave a thought to grooming, Attila and such odd personal habits as brushing her teeth and hair, cutting her nails and demanding clean coverings for her camp bed.

The barbaric babe liked to doll herself up before battle and frequently went on raiding parties bedecked in gold and silver jewelry, wearing makeup and dressed in slinky silk gowns under her hand-worked brass armor.

Her devoted followers thought she was so sexy that they feared her enemies might her if they discovered how gorgeous she was, Dr. Tashenko says.

So her men spread stories that she was a vicious male warrior who drank human blood from the skulls of his enemies, hoping their adversaries would be so intimidated they would avoid Attila at any cost.

"The lies worked and Attila lived to the age of 38, which was a quite old for those times," said Dr. Tashenko, who plans to present his findings at a history conference this fall.

"She was considered beautiful until the day she died.

"And the truth about her gender had been obscured through 1,500 years of history until it came to light last winter when remnants of her old camp at Kiev were uncovered by archaeologists.

"We found several feminine mirrors with her markings on them and a number of perfume and cosmetic pots that clearly belonged to her.

Mind-boggling facts about BIRDS & BUGS!

By FRED COETZEE / Correspondent

The average hummingbird weighs less than a penny. You can make 11½ omelets from an ostrich egg. Honeybees kill more people each year than poisonous snakes.

Those amazing bits of trivia about the birds and the bugs are included in the intriguing book Fascinating Facts by David Louis. Here are some more:

- The hummingbird beats its wings 75 times a second and is the only bird that can fly backward.
- The petrel, a giant bird of the Antarctic, defeats its enemies by vomiting in their faces or by squirting a jet of oil from its nostrils with enough force to knock a person down.
- Flamingos are not naturally pink. Their color comes from their food — tiny blue-green algae that turns pink during digestion.
- The deer botfly can fly faster than a jet plane. It's been clocked at speeds of up to 818 m.p.h. — so fast it's almost invisible to the human eye.
- The penguin takes only one partner in a lifetime and will starve to death if necessary to feed its offspring.
- A common housefly lives only two weeks.
- Certain species of ants kidnap workers from other ant nests and keep them as slaves.
- Cockroaches have lived on Earth for 250 million years without changing in any way.
- The caterpillar has 2,000 muscles.
- There are 5 million different species of insects in the world and their combined weight is 12 times that of all humans on Earth.
- A grasshopper can lift 50 times its own weight and leap over objects 300 times its own height.
- One of the strongest insects on Earth is the common bee. It can lift 300 times its own weight, the equivalent of a human pulling a 10-ton tractor.

TV news reporter mugged during live report!

A TV news reporter had his live report cut short — when a trio of thugs knocked him unconscious and stole his wallet and watch!

Thousands of shocked viewers witnessed the attack on Jorge Arrigo.

The 32-year-old reporter was doing a newscast from a city park for the late-night news in Cordoba, Argentina, when the vicious attack occurred.

Arrigo's cameraman tried to fight off the attackers but was also conked on the head by the young hoods.

To make matters even worse, Arrigo was in the park to report on the area's new street lights and police call boxes. "The park had been an unsafe area for many years and now it looked like it was improving," Arrigo told reporters from his hospital bed. "I guess it wasn't as safe as the police told me it was."

Arrigo suffered a concussion in the attack. The muggers have not yet been arrested.

"At least if the police ever find them it should be easy to have them locked up in jail," Arrigo said.

"There were plenty of witnesses."

GOLFER KNOCKED OUT TWICE — at same hole!

Golf nut Jim Meade ended up in a hospital after his pals' wayward tee shots KO'd him twice within a matter of seconds!

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

"I thought I was in a war zone, the way those balls were clobbering me out there," said bar owner Jim. "I can't believe this happened to me.

"Now my buddies want me to hold the flag on every hole so they can hit the target."

Luckless Jim was searching for his ball in the rough at a golf course in Sunbury, England, when a ball hit by buddy Mick West hurtled through the trees, ricocheted off a branch and smacked him right between the eyes.

Two friends rushed over and were helping Jim, 48, to his feet when they heard pal Danny McLean yell "fore" after slicing his tee shot.

Jim's friends ducked but he didn't — and down he went again.

"My companions hit the deck while I staggered around, and the next thing I knew Danny's ball whacked me in the middle of the back," said the battered barkeep.

"I stumbled and went down again and just passed out."

Jim was taken to a hospital, where a doctor stitched up his head. He was left with a bump on his forehead the size of a golf ball.

A few hours later, though, Jim was back at his bar, downing a few with Mick, Danny and the rest of his golfing gang.

"I suspect it was all a plot because I usually win," he said. "But at least they paid for my drinks all night.

"Big deal after the way they tried to kill me out there."

The man's "crime" was calling China's Prime Minister Li Peng's daughter "a fat pig."

The man was forced to undergo three days of this torture after he was overheard insulting Peng's daughter in a city park.

Coma teen wakes up — when docs pull the plug!

By JULIA McKNIGHT / Staff writer

Teenager Michael Trimmer is a medical marvel who came back from the dead — 10 minutes after doctors gave up hope and pulled the plug on his life-support machine!

The 19-year-old university student had been in a coma for seven days after falling and hitting his head and had not responded to treatment.

Doctors at a hospital in Newcastle, England, told his parents their son had no chance to survive, so they agreed to turn off the machine.

"We stood at Michael's bedside and just felt numb," his mother Stella recalled.

"For 10 long minutes we waited in silence, trying to come to terms with what was happening. "Suddenly, Michael opened his eyes.

"It was an unbelievable moment.

"The nurse asked him if he knew where he was and in a very strange voice he said — 'Ethiopia.'

"We have no idea why he said that but then it wouldn't have mattered what he said. Anything would have been heavenly music to our ears."

A disbelieving nurse grabbed both of Michael's hands and said, "Squeeze if you can understand me" — and he did.

"I just couldn't believe it," said his thrilled dad Michael Sr.

"One minute we were watching the machine and waiting for Michael to die and the next minute he was awake and had opened his eyes. Everyone started to cheer and clap.

"There were so many tears."

Michael had his accident at Durham University, where he is studying chemistry.

Amazed doctors say he should now make a full recovery. "Everyone who knew Michael prayed for him during those seven days," said his grateful mom.

"I truly believe that all our prayers were answered."

HOW TO BE HAPPIER — & FEEL YEARS YOUNGER!

You can be happier and feel years younger — simply by imitating the young people around you, experts say.

"We can't become kids again, but we can feel younger, happier and more relaxed by selectively copying portions of the younger generation's philosophy and adopting some of their attitudes," says psychiatrist Dr. William Chapman.

Dr. Chapman offered these tips for thinking and feeling young again:

● Allow yourself to enjoy life.

"Many adults go out of their way to deny themselves pleasure," the psychiatrist said.

ment. Each evening ask yourself: 'Did I have any fun today?'

"If the answer is no, you've had an unsuccessful day no matter what else you've accomplished. Resolve to do better tomorrow."

● Pack more living into every day. "To feel younger and happier, keep moving, doing and experiencing new things.

"Imitate the brisk, sprightly stride of a young person. Find activities that will keep you interested — take on a new hobby or attend an adult education course."

● Stop living to please others. "Kids are quite selfish, but adults who go to the opposite extreme by always pressed anger, which drains their energy and makes them feel old."

● Play for fun. "If all your leisure activities have a competitive aspect to them, you're not playing for fun, like young people do.

"Find things to enjoy where no scores are kept, where no one judges your performance. You'll feel younger, happier and more relaxed."

● You don't have to "buy" happiness. "Learn to live on less instead of always striving to earn more.

"A family picnic may provide more fun than an expensive dinner in a gourmet restaurant.

"You can enjoy a less-luxurious vacation right now by roughing it a bit, the way kids do.

They call him the Father of the Credit Card!

BLAME HIM! Edward Bellamy invented plastic money.

Edward Bellamy was one of America's finest novelists, but he's best known in financial circles as the Father of the Credit Card!

By CLARENCE PETTIT
Correspondent

In his best-selling novel Looking Backward, published in 1887, Bellamy foretold a day when Americans would pay their bills with plastic rather than currency.

And the nation's oil companies and department stores liked the idea so much, they began issuing credit cards just a few short years later.

"There is no doubt that Edward Bellamy deserves to be called the Father of the Credit Card," said a prominent New York banker.

"He conceived the idea and without him, who knows? — we might not have credit cards to this day."

But experts note that no one person actually invented the credit card.

"Really, after Bellamy's novel, the cards just sort of sprung up," said one Wall Streeter. "It started small, but now it's a $250 billion a year industry."

WHY SALT SENDS YOUR BLOOD PRESSURE THROUGH THE ROOF!—

How can eating lots of salt make your blood pressure rise?

When salt consumption is high, the body retains more water to dilute it to the proper proportion in the cells and blood.

This leads to a greater volume of blood — and high blood pressure can result because more force is needed to pump the increased volume.

High salt intake — more than ½ of a teaspoonful daily — also can lead to a swelling of the tissues called edema.

After a time the body can become too full of water, and this can cause heart attack, congestive heart failure, stroke or kidney disease.

Husband cuts off cheatin' wife's head ...and her family helps him do it!

By DICK DONOVAN / Staff writer

TEHRAN, Iran — A jealous hubby who caught his wife in the sack with another guy chopped off her head — and her mother and father helped him do it!

"It is as it should be," declared Reza Ansari, who whacked off his wife's head with a meat cleaver when he returned from an out-of-town trip and found Tari, his 24-year-old bride, in bed with their landlord.

"The woman shamed me in the eyes of my family, my relatives and my friends. Because she took my pride, I took her head."

Severing the head of a cheating wife has been an honorable tradition among clans in the Khuzistan province of southwestern Iran for centuries.

In fact, if a husband — or even a member of his family — so much as suspects that a wife has been playing around with another guy, the lady is almost certain to lose her head. It all has to do with a warped sense of family honor and, of course, the wronged hubby's masculine pride.

Ansari wasn't even arrested for his deadly deed because he not only had the approval of his family — even his doomed wife's parents supported what he did! Shockingly, when Tari's mother and father found out their daughter was cheating on her husband, they helped hold her down while Ansari lopped off her head with a cleaver, and hung it up in the town square.

"When a married woman fornicates with a man other than her husband, she brings shame on all who loved her," the mother declared.

"She was evil and wanton and deserved no mercy."

Incredibly, countless wives are brutally decapitated in Khuzistan every year, and their heads displayed in public as a warning.

But the husbands always get off scot-free because of religious loopholes in the law and because they have the full support of their fellow clan members.

Pool tournament held on top of man's head!

HUMAN POOL TABLE Otto Blecker sculpted his hair so his buddies could play his favorite game.

By LESKIE PINSON / Staff writer

Otto Blecker is such a billiards nut he had a pool table sculpted into his hair — and let 12 buddies play an entire tournament on his head!

"I'm the world's only human pool table," bragged kooky Otto, 28. "Before long the greatest players alive will be begging to play pool in my hair."

The Hannover, Germany, chemical company heir paid $3,000 to the winner of the bizarre tournament and says he'll offer a $10,000 top prize in the next tourney.

"The hardest part was having to sit perfectly still so the players could take their shots," Otto said. "They played for eight hours one day and seven hours the next."

While his pals played on his noggin — using miniature balls and cue sticks — Otto had a friend videotape the entire 15 hours.

"I couldn't watch them while they were playing, but I've watched the whole thing three times since then," he said.

Pool-crazy Otto says he dyed his hair green and got it cut in the shape of a pool table one day last month just for kicks.

"Then one of my friends said it looked real enough to play a game on," he said.

"That's when I decided I could put my mark on the game of pool forever — by inventing the game of head pool."

The oddball bachelor persuaded a dozen pool-shooting pals to play a tournament in his tresses by offering a whopping $3,000 to the winner.

And when it was all over, it was bartender Franz Wuhner who walked away with the prize.

"The game was a little tricky at first because everything was so much smaller," said Franz, 37. "But when you get used to it, I guess Otto's head is just like any other pool table."

And Franz said he plans to compete in the next tournament on his buddy's head later in the year.

"If Otto's willing to pay the prize money, I'll be there," he said.

"Sure, some of my friends made fun of me for taking part in something so nutty. But then they got a look at the loot I won — and now they're all lining up to play pool on his head."

HOW TO SURVIVE THE STORMY 1990's

By EVELYN EVERETT / Special correspondent

You can easily survive the pressures of living in the 1990's by simply loosening up and adopting a more realistic attitude toward life, an expert says.

Psychiatrist Dr. William Chapman offered these tips on how to cope:

● When you read or hear bad news, ask yourself, "How does this really affect me?"

"Chances are that very little that is commanding headline attention on any particular day will affect your personal life one single bit," Dr. Chapman said.

● Know where you stand on controversial issues.

"One of the more distressing aspects of modern-day living is the impression that we are being pressured into a drastic lowering of our standards," the psychiatrist said.

"To survive, you must know where you stand and maintain personal, moral and ethical standards which do not vary from week to week. The emotionally secure adult has strong convictions that withstand erosion."

● Join organizations that support your point of view.

"It's easy to feel cut off and alone these days, especially if your own beliefs differ from those that have gained public prominence," Dr. Chapman said.

"The groups you join can help give you a sense of strength and purpose.

"Reinforce your spiritual values by joining a church group sympathetic with your ideals. If you are worried about the moral atmosphere in your children's schools, the P.T.A. is a good place to start."

● Maintain an optimistic point of view.

"Resist being carried away by predictions of gloom and doom," the psychiatrist said.

"While it's true that there are many weak spots in our society, it is also true there are still many positive and enjoyable aspects to life."

● Don't resist all change.

"Those who are most apt to crack under the pressures of modern living are those who have rigidly decided 'all change is bad,'" Dr. Chapman said.

"There is a healthy, middle-of-the-road attitude one can easily adopt — maintaining an open mind about new things, adopting what one likes and still maintaining what one prefers from the past."

● Don't take the world's problems so seriously that you forget to have fun.

"Your number one responsibility is to yourself, those you love and those who love you," the expert said.

"If you take the world's problems so seriously that you forget to have fun, you will be robbing yourself, your family and your friends of the benefit of your potentially companionable and agreeable self."

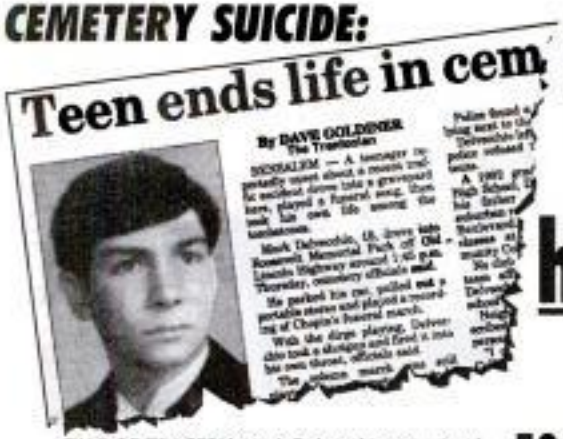
CEMETERY SUICIDE:



Teen ends life in cem

By DAVE GOLDINER
The Trentonian

JERUSALEM — A teenager reportedly upset about a recent traffic accident drove into a graveyard here, played a funeral song, then took his own life using the motorhome.

Mark Delvecchio, 18, drove into Roosevelt Memorial Park off Old Lincoln Highway around 1:45 p.m. Thursday, cemetery officials said.

He parked his car, pulled out a portable stereo and played a recording of Chopin's funeral march.

With the dirge playing, Delvecchio took a shotgun and fired a shot into his own throat, officials said.

The solemn march was still playing on a portable stereo in Mark's car when his body was found by a cemetery groundskeeper.

Police found a dying note in the car, but Delvecchio left police refused to say.

A 1990 graduate of Bensalem High School, he is survived by his father, Robert, a Bensalem [illegible] classes at nearby Cheltenham [illegible] Delvecchio attended school. [illegible]

TALE OF TRAGEDY: Mark Delvecchio committed suicide in a country cemetery.

Teen kills himself while listening to funeral music!

By DICK DONOVAN / Staff writer

Troubled teenager Mark Delvecchio sat in his car in a country cemetery, listening to the haunting strains of a funeral dirge — then pulled out a shotgun and blew himself away!

Though cops in Bensalem, Pa., refused to reveal the contents of a suicide note found in the car, friends believe the handsome, 18-year-old boy snuffed out his life because he was upset over a recent traffic accident.

The mournful music — a dirge by Chopin — was still playing on a portable stereo in Mark's car when his body was found by a cemetery groundskeeper.

Cops found a 20-gauge shotgun lying next to the dead boy's body.

"He just parked the car and turned on the music," cemetery director David Gordon said. "No one even heard the shot.

"I have no idea why he chose Roosevelt Memorial Park. Maybe he just wanted a peaceful place. I understand he was a very poetic boy."

Mark lived with his father and a brother and was a student at Bucks County Community College. He was described by friends as introverted.

"I couldn't believe it," former high school classmate Jill Collins said. "I heard about it, but I really didn't believe it was him."

MAN MARRIES 3 THE SAME FAMILY!

When Harold Gill wed Maria Nowland, the ceremony was like a family reunion — because amazing Harold had already married and divorced Maria's daughter and granddaughter!

By SANDRA LEE
Special correspondent

"I've been blessed three times with three wonderful Nowland women," gushed Harold, 40. "I've been married to three generations of them and believe me, they are all very special."

Harold's incredible marriage-go-round began in 1989 when he tied the knot with divorcee Anna Nowland, then 34.

"Anna's a beautiful woman and we had some great times, but before long we realized we weren't cut out to spend our lives together," said the Rochester, Minn., man.

"After two years we decided to just give it up and move on."

Less than three months later, Harold stood at the altar again — with Anna's daughter Michelle, 18.

"Some people don't believe me, but I swear there was nothing going on between Michelle and me when I was married to her mother," said the romeo shoe salesman.

"As soon as I divorced Anna, though, Michelle started calling me. She was away at college and said she'd like to spend some time with me.

"I talked it over with Anna and she said she wouldn't mind a bit if I dated her daughter — and the next thing you know, Michelle and I were married."

Michelle sat out a year of college, then decided she was ready to return to Iowa to continue her education. "We had a little spat and decided there was no reason to go on being married when she was going to live in Iowa and I was going to live in Minnesota," Harold recalled. "We got divorced and I was crushed because I'd really thought I'd spend my life with Michelle."

Then the casanova salesman's tale took the strangest twist of all — when he found consolation in the arms of Michelle's grandmother Maria.

"Maria is the kindest, sweetest woman I have ever known," Harold said. "Without her help I don't know how I would have survived the divorce from Michelle.

"Before I knew it, one thing led to another and Maria and I were talking marriage. She's only 18 years older than I am and she's so lively I have a hard time keeping up with her"

Harold and Maria were married in a simple ceremony March 20, with Anna and Michelle both looking on.

"I'm glad things worked out for Harold and Mom," beaming Anna said. "He's a great guy and I'm glad he's still a part of the family."
